ABSTRACT

Emergency medicine, with its complexity, has always exerted a "fatal attraction" for Endoscopists, an ongoing and exciting challenge for their professional skills and applied intuition.

NapoLive, the first “live” course in Emergency Endoscopy, is a product of Naples “A. Cardarelli” Hospital, an Azienda Ospedaliera di Rilievo Nazionale e di Alta Specializzazione (National Medical High Specialization Centre) that has a leading role in emergency health care. It has a second-level Emergency-Admission Department equipped with an Emergency Gastroenterology department with its own ward and independent endoscopic rooms.

Digestive bleedings, foreign bodies, ingestion of caustic agents, acute patients with IBD shall be the main cases studied during the course: everything is organised, but nothing can be predicted.

The aim of the course is to effect in real time the delicate situations of the management, diagnosis and therapy of the gastroenterological patient in emergency who arrive at the ER.

The endoscopic and radiologic rooms will be connected via satellite with the congress room. The clinical path will be shared and the waiting time between one patient and the next one will be dedicate to mini-lectures focused on that specific emergency.

TOPICS OF THE LIVE CASES – live from the Emergency Room of the Cardarelli Hospital

- 1. Varicose and not varicose bleedings
- 2. Foreign bodies - Lesions from caustic substances
- 3. Icterus, cholangitis, biliary and pancreatic drainages
- 4. Emergency in IBD
- 5. "Trivial" Pain in the gastroenterological emergency

Opening lecture:

- Operative endoscopy today ... and tomorrow? (Guido Costamagna – Rome, Italy)

LECTURES

- Clinical and therapeutic management of patients with portal hypertensive bleeding: old and new procedures (Juan Carlos García Pagán – Barcelona, Spain)
- Clinical and therapeutic management of patients with non varicose digestive bleeding: any news? (Ian M. Gralnek – Tel Aviv, Israel)
- Ingestion of caustic substances and foreign bodies (Marta Bini - Milan)
- Clinical and therapeutic management of acute IBD patients (Vito Annese – Florence)
- Urgent endoscopy in patients with biliary pancreatic pathologies: when and how? (Marc Giovannini – Marseilles, France)
- From hyperamylasemia to acute pancreatitis (Luca Frulloni - Verona)

The day, and above all the time scheduled for the lectures may vary according to the arrival in the Emergency Room of patients with different pathologies.

COORDINATORS:

Coordinators shall manage lecture times, the sequence of the lectures, the moderators/discussions alternation according to the presence of patients in the Emergency Room and of the inputs received from the operating rooms.

MODERATORS/EXPERTS in the hall

According to the live case being examined, the Expert in the relevant procedure/pathology shall be invited to take the floor and explain the procedure. The Moderators shall try to stimulate the discussion by asking questions also to the Cardarelli Hospital operators and asking the other Experts in the hall to take the floor and make a more exhaustive description of each endoscopic emergency.
