SIMPLIFICATION, PREDICTABILITY, QUALITY TO ACHIEVE RESULTS

Dear colleagues,

It is an honour for me to announce the next annual congress of the EAO. After 13 years, the congress will be back in Italy: in Rome, the eternal city. The Congress Committee and the Board of the European Association for Osseointegration have put a great effort to design a new format for the very successful annual congress.

Over 3 full days, sessions will be organized around one main theme, SPQR (Simplification, Predictability, Quality to achieve Results), that is the backbone of the program with dedicated plenary sessions in the middle of each congress day. The scientific works will show more interactivity with the participants with open discussion between speakers on the podium that indicate different approaches to the same clinical problem. The whole programme is designed to be a critical debate, based on evidence, and on various clinical experiences. Several new sessions have been designed such as dedicated sessions for the implantologist of tomorrow, 3 research sessions open to abstract submission for studies focused on basic research, surgical topics or prosthetic problems. Hands on courses will also take place. As usually large trade exhibitions as well as industry satellite symposia will be organized.

Rome needs no introduction and it is impossible to describe all the possible sightseeing opportunities. The Vatican, the ancient Roman ruins including the Coliseum, the marvellous buildings and paintings of the Renaissance or just the incredible flavour of a walk in the old downtown area will help in transforming the participation to the EAO congress into an unforgettable experience. We expect a very pleasant weather at the end of September with temperatures around 25° C. Besides all this, the scientific committee has worked hard to propose a very attractive program.

The local scientific societies, that in Italy have a long standing tradition of high scientific and clinical level, will have dedicated sessions in English, and guest countries from outside Europe will also be part of the scientific programme.

The new format of the EAO congress will be there for you, we will start our new adventure from the city where a big part of the European culture and tradition comes from: Rome.

So let's meet in Rome next September, the scientific committee is sure that you will have an exciting and professionally rewarding experience.

Luca Cordaro

Chairman of the Scientific Committee

EAO PRESENTATION

HISTORY

The European Association of Osseointegration (EAO) is a non-profit organisation founded in 1991.

It was formed as an international, interdisciplinary and independent science based forum for all professionals interested in the art and science of osseointegration and has now become one of the most regarded international reference for osseointegration in the world.

Bridging the gap between science and clinical practice, the EAO aims to improve the quality of patient care as the leading voice and resource centre in the field of implant dentistry in Europe.

MISSION

- To promote and facilitate clinical applications of osseointegration for the benefit of patients throughout the world.
- To promote the advancement of methods of treatment in reconstructive surgery and prosthetic rehabilitation based on the principles of osseointegration and related disciplines.
- To promote and initiate research into improved clinical procedures for rehabilitation as a consequence of osseointegration.
- To promote international exchange of knowledge and understanding of the techniques and research in the field of osseointegration and related disciplines.

- To promote the publication of research findings and other materials as part of continuing education for the benefit of members and interested organizations.

MANAGEMENT OF EXTRACTION SOCKETS. INSPIRED BY SCIENCE, ESTABLISHED IN DAILY PRACTICE

THE EXTRACTION SOCKET AND ITS RECOVERY

Speaker: Prof. Jan Lindhe (Sweden)

It is a well-established fact that after the loss of one or several teeth the alveolar process becomes transformed into an edentulous ridge. In this process the extraction site undergoes quantitative as well as qualitative changes. Thus, (i) the socket walls become remodeled and the volume of the site is reduced to varying degree, (ii) the bundle bone gradually disappears and the space previously occupied by the root complex is replaced with woven bone and subsequently by marrow and a network of lamellar bone.

Attempts were made to counteract the above described tissue alterations by placing various filler material in the fresh extraction socket. The current report will describe aspects of the process in which deproteinized bovine bone mineral becomes integrated in host bone during socket healing and how hereby the volume of the extraction site will remain more or less unchanged. Findings from animal experiments as well as data from trial in humans will be analyzed and discussed.

CLINICAL CONCEPTS IN HANDLING EXTRACTION SOCKETS

Speaker: Dr. Dietmar Weng (Germany)

Appropriate management of extraction sockets in implant sites has become a paramount issue in implant dentistry. The knowledge of wound healing sequences after tooth extraction has triggered a series of surgical ideas to deal adequately with the consequences of naturally healing sockets. Since implant insertion with simultaneous bone augmentation always requires high surgical skills and advanced patient compliance, easier protocols for the practitioner are desirable for a predictable and stable result of periimplant hard and soft tissue maintenance. Clinical scenarios which ease surgical demands, avoid excessive augmentation procedures and maximize the esthetic and functional long term success are presented.

"LESS IS MORE" – A MINIMALLY INVASIVE TECHNIQUE FOR SINUS LIFT SURGERY IN CONJUNCTION WITH IN-SITU HARDENING ALLOPLASTIC BONE GRAFT SUBSTITUTES <sup>(i)</sup>

Speakers: DDr. Angelo Troedhan (Centre for Facial Aesthetics Vienna, Austria)

BACKGROUND

Sinus lift procedures follow a trend from invasive surgical protocols with a lateral approach and window preparation towards minimal invasive surgical techniques. DDr Angelo Troedhan and five co-workers <sup>(ii)</sup> with intentionally mixed implant experience reported a 97.65% success rate across 627 implant insertions using piezo-ultrasonics and a novel transcresal hydrodynamic protocol <sup>(iii)</sup> with simultaneous bone augmentation and implant placement <sup>(iv)</sup>. DDr Angelo Troedhan will outline the protocol, describe the techniques and materials of choice to achieve lower trauma leading to higher consent rates and improved patient satisfaction.

(i) GUIDOR easy-graft alloplastic bone graft system features mouldable from the syringe, alloplastic bone graft materials with unique in- situ hardening. A choice of resorption profiles and graft volumes allow clinicians to select an option perfectly matched to need.

(ii) As part of the TKW research group.

(iii) Intralift hydrodynamic sinus lift technique by the crestal approach using diamond-coated piezo-ultrasonics tips, of increasing diameters to drill and widen the access canal to the Schneider membrane. An internal lumen and associated sterile spray allows avoids temperature rises, which could lead to tissue damage. Membrane elevation is achieved by means of microcavitation.

THE TREATMENT OF PERIIMPLANTITIS: EFFECTIVE TREATMENT FOR PERIIMPLANTITIS WITH A HIGH RATE OF SUCCESS USING PREDICTABLE TECHNIQUES

Speaker: Dr. Eduardo Anitua (Spain) and Daniele Botticelli (Italy)

16:45 / 18:45

BTI's research team has been working on the prevention and treatment of PERIIMPLANTITIS for the last 15 years of this conference. During this conference we will outline our treatment algorithm, which shows significant differences with respect to what is currently being used. We will also present an effective technique for implant extraction and subsequent regeneration of the posterior alveolus with immediate placement of implants.

NOBEL BIO CARE

HELP TREAT MORE PATIENTS' BETTER IMMEDIATE IMPLANT PLACEMENT

Take the opportunity to gain insights into the latest technologies and protocols that enable you to treat more patients better. Experiences from world-renowned clinicians and researchers will be shared during the two-hour session.

Moderator: Dr. Egon Euwe

16:45 / 18:45

Topics and questions to be addressed by the experts include:

THE SCIENCE AND BIOLOGY OF IMMEDIATE IMPLANT PLACEMENT AND TOOTH REPLACEMENT

Immediate implant and tooth replacement have become a viable treatment option for replacing failing maxillary anterior teeth. However, potential challenges such as implant and esthetic complications may be encountered. This presentation will focus on the current science, philosophies, and methodologies surrounding these indications including the optimization of esthetic results for immediate tooth replacement procedures.

Dr. Joseph Kan

MAXIMIZING TREATMENT OUTCOMES FOR IMMEDIATE IMPLANTS USING DIGITAL TOOLS

- How to effectively use 3D imaging in planning for the tooth to be immediately replaced and restored.
- Does real time diagnosis and evaluation of treatment complexity provide immediate gratification for clinician and patient?
- Use of digital tools in communication with patients to improve understanding and treatment acceptance.

Dr. Roland Glauser

WHAT IMPACT DOES IMPLANT DESIGNS, SURFACE CHARACTERISTICS, SURGICAL AND RESTORATIVE PROTOCOLS HAVE ON THE END RESULT?

Special emphasis will be given to the factors that can facilitate and improve the immediate implant placement procedure.

Dr. Marc Quirynen

MANAGING FAILING DENTITIONS AND THEIR TRANSITIONS TO EDENTULISM

What are the goals in surgical and prosthodontic therapy for the fully edentulous patient when using the All-on-4® treatment concept? Clinical management of patients will be presented by treatment planning, surgical protocols, and fabrication of both provisional and definitive implant-retained prostheses.

OSSTELL ISQ

MONITOR OSSEOINTEGRATION

MONITORING OSSEOINTEGRATION: HOW DO YOU PLAN PREDICTABLE LOADING PROTOCOLS?

Monitoring osseointegration is critical to predictable and successful loading protocols. Osstell ISQ is the only objective, reliable and non-invasive way to monitor osseointegration

THE ISQ-SCALE IN DAILY PRACTICE

Prof. Peter K. Moy, UCLA, USA

This presentation will outline the clinical benefits of RFA and Osstell ISQ in daily practice. If you are monitoring osseointegration you will often be able to reduce treatment time and avoid premature loading. In addition, you will be able to treat risk patients in a more predictable way. The presentation will include an explanation of the ISQ Scale, and the evidence which supports it. In addition, you will learn how to use the scale to achieve real clinical benefits in your practice.

MONITORING OSSEOINTEGRATION: A DYNAMIC BIOLOGICAL PROCESS

Prof. Mauro Labanca, Italy

Osseointegration is a dynamic and biological process that should be monitored in order to develop predictable loading protocols customized for each of your implant patients. Torque is a one-time, static measurement of mechanical stability, shear forces and friction. This presentation will also describe the relationship between ISQ and other factors such as micro mobility and BIC (bone to implant contact). The presentation will include information about how ISQ can be integrated with other implant diagnostics to provide the best quality treatment plans and care for your patients.

Moderator: Prof. Mariano Herrero Climent, Univ of Sevilla, Spain

MEMBERS REGISTRATION

To register as a member, please use the personal link you received by email. If you did not receive this email, please contact eao2014@clq-group.com.

Please note that only members of EAO, having paid their 2014 membership fees, and members of the Italian Society of Oral Surgery and Implantology, Italian society of Osseointegration, Italian Society of Periodontology, Implantology and Italian Academy of Prosthetic Dentistry and Italian Society for Oral Surgery can benefit from the reduced member registration fee.

Paid up members of the Italian collaborative societies are entitled to free registration on Saturday September 27th. This free registration includes: free access to SICOI/SIO/SIO and SidP/AOIP sessions, entrance to the exhibition area, coffee breaks and lunch. It doesn't give access to the EAO sessions (regular registration required).

If you are not listed on these associations' membership lists, the organizers reserve the right to register you as a non-member and charge the corresponding registration fee. Non-members who wish to pre-register as EAO members may go to the EAO website to submit a membership application before registering.

DISCOVER ROME

Throughout the centuries, Rome has had such a deep impact on the world that, in any way, introducing it almost seems redundant. Founded by Aeneas's descendants 2700 years ago, Rome was the centre of the Roman Empire before evolving into the capital of the Catholic Church and, most recently, into the capital of the Italian Republic. As such, Rome's influence has, from a linguistic, political and artistic standpoint, literally molded the history of western civilization.

Visiting Rome thus means more than simply visiting a city, it means revisiting the entire history of the western world from its early beginnings. With its Colosseum, its timeless Forum, its ancient spas and pagan temples, Rome offers a unique opportunity to breathe the atmosphere which once reigned during the great Emperors' days. With its more than three hundred churches ranging from Michelangelo's magnificent St. Peter's basilica to more humble buildings where the first Christians gathered, Rome also offers visitors a unique window on the history of Christianity. Moreover, thanks to its unequalled art collections, Rome provides a rare opportunity to meet up close with the work of such Renaissance and Baroque geniuses as Raphael, Bernini, Borromini and Caravaggio.

It is by no accident that such sophisticated individuals as Goethe, Byron and Shelley elected Rome as their home, and that millions of visitors continue to pour down Rome's beautifully picturesque, fountain and obelisk-strewn streets year in and year out. Quite literally, no other city in the world even comes close to Rome's beauty and artist prowess. The sunny disposition of Roman dwellers and the city's exquisite cuisine, make for an all the more incomparable setting.
